There is no riding in this workshop and no prior experience with horses is required.

Kathleen Barry Ingram, MA, is well-known for her work at the Epona Center with author Linda Kohanov [Tao of Equus]. The Epona Method, or the Way of the Horse, is an innovative and creative healing modality employing the horses as equal partners in the journey toward wholeness. Among Kathleen's well-received workshops across the country, she has been a featured presenter at the 2003 NARHA conference and served as an academic advisor for Prescott College.

Leigh Shambo, MSW, LMHC is a clinical therapist and educator who has spent over 20 years training horses and riders. Through experience and study she understands that horses offer us a profound spiritual journey while on a practical path—what she calls Invisible Horsemanship. For both riders and non-riders she is a skilled interpreter of the horse/human relationship. Leigh is an Epona Advanced Facilitator practicing in southwest Washington.
